Dear Sir/Madam,

Whether I have sent you an email or you have came across my website, I wish you keep on reading. This is a general statement for everyone interested in learning more about me.

My name is Mohammed Alkebsi and I am working as Full-Stack Websites Developer, Professional Digital Marketer, and an English Teacher. Long ago, I was flabbergasted with teachers and wanted to be one in my future. I wanted to teach the thing I loved in this life, Coding or Programming. However, opportunities were limited, but I have been able to be a teacher for MFL classes.

I also worked as a freelance web developer/designer for many companies and individuals since 2019. Usually, I always try to accomplish more than needed that I have formed a design agency with my brother called "Hook Studio" and now willing to start "Stedium". Throughout the years, I have polished my skills through side projects, volunteer work, and extra curriculums.

Up till know, I have taken about 60+ international courses from Harvard, Stanford, MIT, The Open University, HPI, SPA, Google, and many others while some of them certified me. For the last year, I have taken about 34 international and local certificates and I have leveled up my English, programming skills, marketing skills, management and entrepreneurial skills, and teaching skills. Moreover, I have worked in Harvard CS50 library, cs50.h using the C language, as an internship after CS50's intro to computer science course.

All in all, all this experience have came of passion while now I want to take it seriously. Once landing my first job, I will start my BSc (Hons) in Computing and IT at The Open University. After all, having done so much, I want to do something for the community. Teaching some guys, volunteering for people in need, working with Yemeni companies to develop the tech-side of them, helping or assisting in the e-learning processes, and being with creative professionals all around the world...

Thanks in advance for your time and consideration,

Best Regards,
Mohammed Alkebsi

ABOUT ME

Full-Stack websites developer, digital marketing specialist, writer, and author at Envato Market. Currently working online as a full-time freelancer and open-source contributor. After many years of getting information from the entire world, I finally decided to implement it in a work I do for the community even for my hometown or the world. Volunteering is the key that would let me exceed the next level and reach my apex, as I believe. Wish I could contribute and be an initiative member in this community!
